UPCOMING EVENTS WITH ISL ACCESS.

This week we have been asked to share with you a number of events that will be accessible to members of the deaf community.

SEAMUS HEANEY- LISTEN NOW AGAIN EXHIBITION.

Wednesday 25th September at 1pm
Irish Sign Language Tour of Seamus Heaney: Listen Now Again

There will be an Irish Sign Language (ISL) tour of this exhibition on Wednesday September 25th from 1- 1.45pm to celebrate International Day of Sign Languages 2019.

The exhibition will take place in the Bank of Ireland Cultural and Heritage Centre on Westmoreland Street, Dublin 2. The tour will look at Seamus Heaney's archive and aims to give an insight into his life and writing process through viewing early drafts of his work and important documents from the archive. To book, email Lisa at heaneyexhibition@nii.ie or text 087 361 3344

TOM CREAN- ANTARTIC EXPLORER.

The multi-award winning show Tom Crean- Antarctic Explorer written and performed by Aidan Dooley will have ISL interpreter access on Wednesday, 16th of October at 8pm.

It will be held in the Everyman Cork, 15 Mac Curtain St, Cork. The regular price for tickets is €27. Concessions are €25 and students €9. For more information, you can email: info@everymancork.com or check out their website at www.everymancork.com

SILENCE & VOICE FESTIVAL OF FEMINISMS.

NCCWN Clare Women's Network is delighted to once again present 'Silence + Voice, A Festival of Feminisms' in Danlann an Chlair, Ennis on the 19th and 20th of October.

This unique event with ISL access will offer 400 participants an opportunity to reflect creatively on silence and voice as part of their journey as women in Ireland.
